The collusion possibility exists in case she and her husband connived to enable her to marry Durocher, rugged baseball manager. WHISKERINOS ADVOCATE SLAB WOOD STORE FRONTS, HAIRY FACES FOR HAPPY JULY FOURTH

NEVADA CITY: Prime concern of the local Whiskerino Club at the moment is expediting the process of putting the entire town in Western accoutrements. That big word, according to Ray Spicklemier, publicity chief of the club means the following:

Store fronts will take on a rugged coating of slab wood. Citizens, masculine gender, will adorn themselves with facial hair or Western clothes. Ladies, particularly for festive occasions, will be attired like the belle of the ball in '49.

First kangaroo court is scheduled for Friday evening, May 9. "Beware barefaces! will be the slogan then.

Proceeds of Whiskerino activities (fines, memberships, dance profits) will be used in equal amounts for Pioneers Park and the airport.

Two dances are already scheduled, with participants to wear 49er costume. Admission to at least one will be free to paid-up Whiskerinos.

The hoosegow will be in evidence for the first kangaroo court. Peterson is industriously constructing this portable edifice now. Hoosegow headquarters will be in the lot next to Alpha Hardware. Bill Fletcher has lent the whisker society his truck for use as a drygulch wagon.

Tickets for the Whiskerino Club are available at Hansen's Paint Store, Electronic Radio, National Club and Bottle Shop.

Free slab wood is available at the Arbogast mill to merchants ready to decorate their store fronts.

Last year's whiskerino proceeds were spent for civic betterment. Of $400 net, $100 went for a piano for Seaman's Lodge, $100 for work on the ball park, and the rest is budgeted ..for ..childrens' ..rereational equipment—swings, wading pool, and other gadgets to delight the young ones.

Whiskerino officers include: Chief Harry Clayton, Sheriff, Daniel Crawford, Judge, Pete Peterson, Deputies, James Peard, Alfred Irby, William Fletcher and Joseph Sandholm.

FISHERMEN REPORT VARIED LUCK

NEVADA CITY: Sierra County and the northern tip of Yuba County which reaches into the high fish country were the Meccas of anglers from Nevada County, which is closed until May 30th, under a new rule of the Fish and Game Commission..

Parties of fishermen drove through Nevada City this morning bound for the Middle Yuba River, the North Yuba River and the many streams flowing into it, for Sardine Lakes, upper and lower, the Gold Lakes, and all the streams flowing into the lakes in Sierra County.

Many limits were taken during the day in Sierra County.. Among the lucky ones, or the limit experts, were Charles Hanson and Bob Towner of Sierra City, Sierra County, Louis Davies of Forest, who used and helgamites after unsuccessful casts with flies.

On Sardine Creek a few trout were taken on tippet coachmen, but that is the only report that came in during the day of trout rising to flies.

Alvin T. Wright, fire control assistant at the Downieville, Sierra County, ranger station,, and John Butz, fire patrolman, both caught limits in the North Yuba, early yesterday morning on helgamites. Chester Butz, Division of Highways foreman stationed at Downieville, took a limit early in the day on worms. James Sinnot, Downieville high school principal got a limit, using oil packed, pale salmon eggs in the North Yuba..

H. G. Balcon of Napa County was one of the early morning limit catchers.

Browning's resort on Lower Sardine Lake was packed with overnight guests and it was reported some had difficulty finding a vacant tree to sleep under. A rush of fishermen Saturday and Sunday is expected in eastern Yuba County and in all of Sierra County. Many came prepared yesterday to spend a week along the North Fork of the Yuba. Many fishermen were greatly disappointed that the flies failed to attract the fish. The streams everywhere were ideal for fly casting but the trout apparently thought it still too early. With the weather warming up, however, experienced anglers believe the fly hatch will be expected and the trout conditioned for taking the fly lures.

BIG GAIN IN EMPLOYMENT REPORTED HERE

GRASS VALLEY: Improved labor market conditions experienced in March continued on to a brisk steady demand through the month of April. Statistically this is reflected in the number of new openings received during the month there being 208 as compared to 122 in March.

Good weather enabled logging and sawmill operations and mining, in some areas, to start earlier than normally. The impact of this early resumption of activties, was immediately felt by other dependent industries and was reflected in demands for workers to take care of increaed business. This was especially true of foundries and machine shops fabricating and repairing mining and sawmill machinery. Hiring tempo was also increased and hotel and restaurant occupations but no appreciable change was noted in retail trade market conditions, things remaining practically static as in the past months insofar as hiring was concerned.

The general outlook is fo favorable labor market conditions from now on. Opeations which have resumed and those which will resume can be assured of favorable weather conditions. An earlier start in seasonal operations was experienced this year than is normally the case..

Active applications on file totaled 734, 173 of which were female and 286 veteran. This is a drop in total apolications of 224 from March. Unemployment insurance claims as of April 24th totaled 551, of which 163 were veteran claims. Last year the peak in insurance claims was reached in March while this year it occured in February. Since then there has been a steady decline which will continue from now on. No difficulty in anticipated in placing male applicants, however female applicants are a problem as there is not much outlet locally for placement of any sizeable goup of these workers.

Currently it is estimated that there are about 800 workers engaged in lumbering operations and between 700 and 800 in mining. The construction of a new mill above Downieville and at Grizzly Creek, which will be completed about June 1, will require about 25 men each. Another mill is under construction at Truckee and expects to be in operation some time this year. It will employ about 100.. Bids have been let for the completion of dam construction at Scotts Flat which will cost about $500,000. The required force is not known at the moment. Road construction will require an additional 50 men in the next month or two. Some mills expect to ut on two shifts. Their ultimate action will reflect upward or downward on the net labor demand. Net labor demands in lumbering during the next four months can probably be conservatively estimated at about 400.. Mining demands will be for replacement mostly with about a net increase of 150.

Job opportunities in the area from now on will consist mainly in mining and lumbering operations. There will also be some demand for heavy constrution workers later on and for workers in forest service work, mainly for access road construction. Spotty demand for machintsts and maintenance men will occur. Opportunities for culinary workers will open up in the resort area about June 1 and will afford many openings for females. However usually former workers are called back or return, so it is not known actually how many openings will occur until the operators find out how many intend to return. Hiring usually starts about May 14 for the Tahoe resorts. Building constrution is not very active at the moment. It is anticipated that the local labor supply can take care of current demands except for resort workers.

Housing is tight but can be obtained after a short wait.

THINKING OUT LOUD

By H. M. L.

"I will lift mine eyes unto the hills," saith the Good Book, and there are times in this world of ours when keeping the hills in view is an excellent, salutary practice, the hills metaphorically for the purposes of discussion, being the ideals of the American democracy.

It goes without saying that democracy is a form of government organized primarily for peace. When war comes, democracies must match dictatorships with an autocratic form of government, in order to survive in the struggle. It can be inferred,, quite properly, we think, that any form of government imposing a dictatorship upon its people in peace time, is doing so with the expectation of waging war sooner or later. The old philisophy of government through the middle ages, which still persists, among some nations, was that war is man's natural state, and peace the exceptional.

We have a number of dictatorships in the world today which apparently expect war. First, of course, is Russia making ready to wage war when it fails in its diplomatic onslaughts on its immediate neighbors. Spain is a dictatorship founded on a civil war and undoubtedly preparing to maintain itself by crushing all domestic and democratic rebellion and to resist intervention of democratic forces from without. China is a reluctant dictatorship. Reluctant, because it hesitates to cut the ties that bind it to western democracies. Argenine is a dictatorship patterned in many respects after the ill fated Nazi despotism.

There are other dictatorships composed of governing groups in smaller countries here and there throughout the world. These minor dictatorships, for example, include the governments of Portugal, Iraq, on the extreme right, and Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Poland, on the extreme left.

So large is the proportion of dictatorships, either of the rightest or leftist character, in the world today, that one wonders how,, in such a world, going in so many different directions at once, the United Nations can restore order and peace. The vtto power which Russia forced upon the world delegates in the San Francisco meeting, assigning that power to Russia, the United States, Great Britain, France and China, is so formidable an obstacle to union in any peace policy as to defeat the whole plan of united action.

We wonder if the United Nations is not in essence a modern Tower of Babel. We have had almost two years of talk in all the languages of earth and very feeble artion. This, for the reason that strong Russia's veto can defeat action any time when weak United Nations desires to do something that runs counter to the Russian revolution of communism..

So we turn our eyes to the nearest hills. What are those hills that gradually loom from the clouds and storms that enshroud the deliberation of the United Nations?

We would think after viewing the present and prospective failure of the United Nations, that all true democracies, should resign and form a new order, a Union of Democratic Nations. This would include all English speaking peoples, some Spanish speaking peoples, such as Mexico, and a number of South American republics. The criterion of membership in such a union should be, how much personal freedom do citizens of a nation, applying for a seat in the new order, enjoy, or, how much freedom do applicant governments permit to their citizens in the pursuit of happiness.

The Union of Democracy would be opposed to all forms of autocracy, whether communist as in Russia or socialist states as in Spain, under Franco. A grouping of this kind seems much more feasible here and now, than further attempts to make the United Nations effective under its present handicap, namely the veto power accorded and written into its charter, to the five great nations.

By 1960 there may be 66,000 students enrolled on the campuses of the University of California, a recent study predicts.

Watch Reaction of Soviet Satellites to U. S. Policy | Russian Bulletin Boasts Red Army "Won the War"

Special to Central Press

● WASHINGTON—Diplomats are watching with interest the possible reaction that President Truman's new foreign policy will have on the attitude of Soviet satellite states toward the United States.

Some foresee the possibility that those nations will become even more restrictive in their domestic controls, such as the lessening of democratic liberties. Others anticipate that the various governments may become more amiable, at least in paying lip courtesy to America.

So far, little information has been given the peoples of countries like Yugoslavia and Poland of the aid policy toward Greece and Turkey. Even the Moscow radio, which is an influential source of news in the Balkans, has said little about the aid plan, presumably uncertain what the effect of the news would be there.

President Truman

Meanwhile, United States officials are letting the matter rest, trusting that in time the news will be heard. They foresee a powerful weapon in diplomacy if Greece is restored to something like normal prosperity while the Russian satellite states have a tough time making ends meet.

The proposed direct relief appropriations means that aid will be withheld from unfriendly states. This policy is likely to break down, however, if starvation faces any large segment of the population in such states, since success of the American plan depends on the hope that the masses, finding nothing to gain in Communism, ultimately will force a return to democratic ways.

* * * *

● THE RUSSIAN CONCEPTION of "who won the war" was stated bluntly by the Soviet embassy Bulletin, official voice of Moscow in Washington. The Kremlin-inspired periodical stated: "In the world struggle against Fascism—the second world war—the Soviet army made the greatest contribution."

The Bulletin went on to say: "The theater of war over which the Soviet army struggled had an area roughly six times that of all the other theaters of war where Allied troops battled the German-Fascist coalition.

"It is also a fact that the human losses sustained by the Soviet army were more than six times the losses of all other Allied armies combined."

No mention was made of the billions of dollars in war material poured into Russia at a time when the Red forces were fighting with their backs strictly to the wall.

● THE SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION, which houses many objects associated with the progress of civilization, has become the possessor of a device linked to one of modern man's most awesome demonstrations of destructive power.

Norden bombsight No. 4120, used when the Army Air Forces dropped the atomic bomb on Hiroshima on Aug. 6, 1945, recently was presented to the institution.

Dr. Alexander Wetmore, secretary of the Smithsonian, remarked in accepting the historic bombsight that he hoped there never again would be a conflict requiring the use of such an instrument.

Hiroshima Bombsight In Museum

The bombsight was one of the war's top secrets. It was responsible for the remarkable accuracy achieved not only in the atomic bombings of Hiroshima and Nagasaki but in the orthodox attacks which helped smash Germany's war potential.

The presentation was made by A. C. Buehler, president of the Victor Adding Machine company, which aided in developing the infallible "sighting machine." Buehler said he shared Wetmore's hope that the bombsight in the museum and all the others in existence would never again be used for purposes of carnage.

However, Gen. Carl Spaatz, commanding general of the air forces, who attended the ceremony, warned that the nation, even in peace, must maintain the "know-how" which was a vital weapon of victory.

Parents Must Pull Together

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, Ph.D.

THERE is abroad the general impression that it is always the mother who shields the child from desirable discipline. But judging from what I have seen with my own eyes and heard with my own ears and read in letters from mothers, I am sure that "always" makes the foregoing statement too strong. There are plenty of pampering papas and it seems to me they are more to be pitied (or condemned) than pampering mamas.

Of a son six his mother writes: "Please send me in the enclosed stamped envelope your bulletin, 'Fathers Are Parents, Too.' I sometimes tell Oscar he can't have something and he will go to his daddy to get it, which his daddy will do and this gets under my skin, and if I'm provoked his daddy will just smile." This strikes me as about the meanest, low-down thing any parent can do.

Another Mother Writes

Another mother writes: "Calvin is seven years old, an only child and the apple of his father's eye. If anything goes against this boy's will or wishes, he throws himself on the floor in a tantrum—hits, kicks, breaks things, tears up pictures and goes on a regular rampage. He gets an allowance. I have tried to deduct from his allowance to pay for things he has broken, but his father is sorry for him and gives him extra money or buys ice cream or candy for him. I lose my temper, too often but I try to be consistent in my discipline, but so often his father countermands my orders, and disagrees with my discipline."

It pained me, as it must pain you, to read the following: "I have always been complimented on the way I have reared my seven-year-old daughter. But no one knows the struggle it has been.

Husband Interferes

"Regardless of when or for what I reprimand the child my husband always interferes and pacifies her to such an extent that at times she seems to hate me. If I deprive her of something for being naughty she gets it from her daddy . . . If it continues I fear it will break up our home.

"I have talked it over kindly at first and when that didn't bring success have resorted to arguing the matter, but it still doesn't help. Needless to say she is an only child."

Children Are Sufferers

"A house divided against itself can't stand," and when it falls the children are the greatest sufferers. To bring up a child well, both parents must try to be as one concerning his guidance. They ought to have enough intelligence and self-control to desist from disagreement in the child's presence, but to iron out their basic differences in his absence. Even then to discuss these differences without heat (reasonably) requires the highest degree of self-discipline and sportsmanship.

As I tried to show these mothers (and others like them) in my personal replies, they can't hope to change the father by getting angry and quarrelling with him. They can win only through gentle loveliness and the "still small voice."

DISABILITY INSURANCE BENEFITS LISTED

CHICO: Disability insurance benefits totaling $75,000 have been paid to residents of Nevada City and other cities served by the California Department of Employment's Disability Insurance office in Chico during the first five months of the system's operation, it was reported today by Julian A. Ellis, office manager. Payments to wage earners throughout California who have been unemployed because of sickness or injury for a period of two weeks or longer, amounted to slightly more than $5,000,000 during the same period.

The Chico office serves nine valley counties.

"The amount paid out by the Chico office was distributed among approximately 650 pesons who filed valid claims during that period," Ellis said. "Benefits ranging up to $20 a week are paid to individuals as partial compensation for loss of wages due to unemployment caused by physical or mental disability. Payments are made from the State Disability Fund, which was created and is maintained by taxes paid by employees on their wages."

Last week in Nevada County, $1,173 was paid to individuals whh had previously established eligibility for benefits.

We Got to the Fish Fry After All

That community fish fry was sure a great success. There were plenty of appetizing extras, and Will Dudley did a right wonderful job of frying the fish—soft and flaky inside—brown and crisp around the edges.

But we didn't get to go. The missus was tired after working in the yard, and we just didn't want to leave her.

Then how did we know the fish was so good? Because the folks didn't forget us. They sent Skippy Henderson over with two steaming covered plates of fish and a pitcher of cool, sparkling beer. And we finished them off in front of our own fire.

From where I sit, that's one of the things that makes our town so nice a place to live in: a spirit of share and share alike. That plate of fish and glass of beer weren't just great eating, they were symbols of the thoughtfulness that makes for better living!

Free Elections

Ever pay any attention to your newspaper reports of trouble encountered in the smaller European nations concerning free elections? The former satellites of Nazi Germany, and the present satellites of Soviet Russia, are finding the ideal of elections incompatible with those political doctrines that have been foisted upon them. Such insane foolishness as having the masses go to the polls for honest and secret voting, they say, is reserved for the decadent democracies.

These classless and enlightened denizens under benevolent socialist governments (that's the picture drawn up for consumption of peoples still ruled by despotic capitalists) do not of course value the power of the vote. They do not know what a workable factor of democracy the vote is. Not having permitted the will of the people to develop through free speech, a free press, and free elections, the fetters of ruling classes are likely to remain.

Example, Britain

No nation can have free elections, while at the same time it tries to artificially discipline its labor force and foster government management of industry. Recent events in Britain give point to this statement. It was evident to me while in England last August that the nation was in for trouble. Absenteeism of workers in coal mines had risen to about 25%, and this was reduced to 18% only in January, when the coal famine was already a reality. Productivity remained inexplainably low.

Because there was a lack of national discipline, that is, the normal self-discipline common in America's industrial workers, coal was not coming from the mines. Parliament was afraid to discipline the miners to get coal. Parliament feared results at the next election. This explains why the labor government calmly watched the coal crisis develop, step by step, fully aware that it was coming.

No Ruling Classes

No country can promote government management of industry, as England is trying to do, and maintain discipline of labor along with free elections. Stalin has the first two, in good measure, but he is not troubled with elections. Free elections under present conditions in Russia would have little meaning. They are a risk that the Soviet ruling class could never assume.

We in America have found that the best type of discipline comes from incentives found in the ambition to get ahead. When a man knows he can better his lot and is not afraid to try, the best kind of self-discipline is the result. The lowliest immigrant can become a great inventor. An assembly line worker can plan to own the factory, and can do it honestly. Things like these have happened too often to go unnoticed.

If we want to keep high efficiency, with the highest possible wages and

Veterans' News

Marriage failures, job difficulties, high prices and inexperience in business are the chief reasons why a small but growing number of Northern California veterans are defaulting on their GI loans, according to VA loan officials in San Francisco.

Only 127 veterans, around four-tenths of one per cent of those who have obtained GI loans in the Northern California area since the GI Bill became effective nearly two years ago, were listed as "default cases" in VA files at the end of February. However, by April 11 the number had jumped to 196, the sharpest increase thus far.

VA investigators who try to save veterans from final defaults on their loans say that marital difficulties, many of them arising from hasty war time marriages, are responsible for some of the failures to maintain GI home loans. When a family is broken up there is usually no further need for the home the veteran is buying.

Loss of the home buyer's income through unemployment also contributes to home loan defaults, VA says but some of these situations are saved by delaying foreclosure until the veteran has found another job.

Lack of experience and zooming market prices have proved the veterans' chief handicaps in business. Some veterans begin business ventures on GI loans without enough experience in the business field they enter or without adequate knowledge of market conditions and fundamental business procedures.

Experience above all and a lot of hard thinking and planning are usually required if a new business is to succeed VA tells veterans who seek advice on GI business loans.

Q: Does my right to obtain a GI loan continue indefinitely?

A: No. But you have until ten years after the official termination of World War II.

Q: I need repairs on my artificial leg that will cost more than the $35 allowed on my prosthetic service card. Will VA pay the extra expense?

A: You should ask VA to approve the repairs. If the repairs are approved, VA will pay the full bill even if is more than $35.

Q: I am an American Indian and a World War II veteran. Am I eligible for a GI loan?

A: Yes, but it must be on property you own or plan to own outside the reservation. You cannot secure a GI loan to build a home on tribal land.

COUNTY VETERANS NEWS

With preparations nearly complete for state sale of surplus barracks and other buildings to veterans in various parts of California, the Nevada County Veterans Service office today urged former servicemen who are interested in the program to file applications for eligibility as soon as possible..

The applications are needed, they explained to enable the State Department of Finance to determine what type and how many buildings purchase when they become available in the different localities.

Veterans will be able to purchase the buildings including equipment for a fixed price. Many of these buildings will contain plumbing and lighting fixtures, heating equipment and other facilities, as well as windows and doors. The structures must be converted to housing and used exclusively by veterans.

Sales will be for cash, to permit of the $1,000,000 revolving fund set up by the legislature to carry out the program, but veterans will be permitted to make substantial deposit at the site and then be given a few days in which arrange for bank or other financing to complete the purchase. Veteran purchasers may remove the buildings themselves or arrange with a ontractor to do the job.

To apply for elegibility, a veteran should take a certificate or photographic copy of his discharge, or other release from the service to the Nevada County Veterans Service office, located at 310 W. Main Street, Grass Valley. The State Department of Veterans Affairs will certify eligibility after which the veteran will be notified by the Department of Finance of any sales planned for his vicinity.

Good Town Suit

Slim gray woolen outfit.

By VERA WINSTON

THERE SHOULD be plenty of duty ahead for this staunch suit, the sort of garb that can be a wardrobe wonder, since it is such a pleasing balance between the soft and the tailored model. Fashioned on long, slim torso lines, of town gray woolen, it has attractive details. Set-in tabs parade down the front, the ends at one side being loose. Similar detail is repeated down one side of the very slim skirt.

MILK PRICE GOING UP IN PLACER-NEV. AREA

SACRAMENTO: Basing its action on evidence received and testimony taken at public hearings in Northern California, the State Department of Agriculture, through its Bureau of Milk Control, announced today that effective May 1 the minimum price of fluid milk sold by producers to distributors in the Siskiyou Marketing Area will be lowered to $1.17 1-2 per pound milk fot from $1.24 per pound, f.o.b. producer's ranch. decrease in the price paid to producers, however, will not reduce prices paid by consumers because the hearings showed, the burereau said that profit margins of distributors had been insufficient to meet advanced post of materials and supplies

The minimum price to be paid milk producers by distributors in the Lassen, Plumas, Sierra Marketing Area will not be reduced. The minimum consumer price in both of these areas will be increased because distributors' margins are too narrow. The store price and retail home delivered prices in the Placer-Nevada Area will be increased 1 1-2c per quart. This will not change the price that some consumers have been paying for milk in this area, because most distributors were selling at prices above the state minimum. The store price will be increased 1 cent per quart and the retail home delivered price 1-2c per quart in the Lassen-Plumas-Sierra Marketing Area.

Family Gets Its Milk Quota In This Main Dish, Dessert

By BETSY NEWMAN

DO you see that every member of the family, and not just the children, get their quota of milk every day?

At the present price of milk it is quite an item in the food budget, but money spent for milk is well spent. We all—old, young and middle-aged—need milk for its calcium and phosphorous content. Some of the milk may be supplied in cream soups, milk puddings or cream casserole dishes, instead of drinking it, as some people do not like plain milk.

In today's menu the creamed tuna and milk and cream in the dessert take care of the milk needs.

Today's Menu

Creamed Tuna Fish or Salmon in Patty Shells
French Fried Potatoes
Buttered New Cabbage
Cauliflower and Carrot Salad
Peach Custard Pie Tea

Patty Shells—Puff Paste

1 c. butter or margarine
1½ c. bread flour
⅝ c. ice water

Wash butter or margarine, reserve 1 tbsp. and shape remainder into an oblong piece ½ inch thick. Put on floured board or cloth. Work the reserved tablespoon butter into flour with fingertips of right hand, 2 knives or pastry mixer. Moisten to a dough with ice water, turn on slightly floured board, and knead 5 min. Cover with cloth and bowl and let stand 5 min. Pat, lift and roll ⅛ inch thick, keeping paste longer than it is wide, and corners square. Draw into shape with fingers, if necessary.

Place butter in center of one side of paste; fold other side of paste over butter and press edges firmly, to enclose as much air as possible. Fold one end of paste over enclosed butter, other end underneath.

Turn paste ¼ way round, pat, lift and roll ⅛ inch thick, having paste longer than wide, lifting often to prevent sticking, and dredging board slightly with flour, when necessary. Fold from end towards center, making 3 layers. Repeat 4 times, turning paste ¼ way round each time before rolling. After fourth rolling, fold from ends to center, then fold double, making 4 layers. Chill.

For patty shells, roll ¼ inch thick, cut out rounds with cutter dipped in hot water. Remove centers from half the rounds with smaller cutter to make rims. Moisten edges of plain rounds with cold water, put on rims, press edges together slightly, and chill until paste is stiff.

Start baking in hot oven (450 F.), reducing heat gradually as they bake to 350 F., turning as needed to brown evenly. They should finish baking in 25 min. Lay trimmings carefully on top of each other, pat and roll out for small pastries. You can also use a rich pie crust recipe for patties, instead of this puff paste.

Peach Custard Pie

1 No. 2½ can peaches
⅓ c. white corn syrup
Milk
⅛ tsp. salt
3 tbsp. cream corn starch
2 eggs, separated
1 tbsp. butter or margarine
⅛ tsp. almond extract
1 tsp. lemon juice
1 c. whipping cream
1 9-inch baked pie shell

Drain juice thoroughly from peaches. Measure juice and add enough milk to make 2 c. Combine syrup, salt and corn starch in saucepan, add peach juice and milk and stir until smooth.

Heat to boiling over direct heat, stirring constantly. Boil gently for 1½ min. or until mixture thickens.

Beat egg yolks and gradually add the hot mixture, stirring thoroughly. Return to saucepan and continue to cook for 3 min.

Remove from heat, add butter, almond extract and lemon juice and stir well. Gently fold the hot mixture into stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour a small portion in bottom of pie shell, place peach slices over this, then remaining custard filling. Chill, and serve topped with whipped cream. Serves 8.
